“ My cousin Keith. He always had a formidable stature. But he really was just a teddy bear. He often called me “little Wanda” because I was lost in his shadow when I stood by him. Like most families, we rarely saw each other as adults. But I loved him dearly as I know he loved me. This is especially difficult because I can't be with my family to mourn or celebrate his loss. But I know my dear cousin is at peace with the Lord and sooner or later we will all be together again.
