

Evangelist Annie Lorraine Reynolds Hagwood

May 13, 1939 - April 13, 2024

Evangelist Annie Lorraine Reynolds Hagwood was born on May 13, 1939, in Patrick Springs, Virginia to the late Lillie Lois Reynolds and Richard Johnson Reynolds.

Annie was family-oriented and showed unconditional love to everyone she encountered. She was the eldest sister of twelve siblings. Annie was married to Joseph Hardie Hagwood, as they had six children. She migrated to Connecticut with her family in 1969. Shortly after, she earned her high school diploma from James Hillhouse High School. Annie worked at Winchester Repeating Arms and Pratt & Whitney as a mechanical worker for many years. Her greatest and most rewarding job was becoming an ordained minister and later, an evangelist. She enjoyed spreading the word of God. Annie was a minister at Pitts Chapel Unified Free Will Baptist Church in New Haven, CT under Bishop E. Davis.

Annie was passionate for the church and God's people. She was committed to picking up her grandchildren to attend church. To know Annie is to know strength, determination, and her unwavering faith. Annie would stop and give praise to the Lord at any given moment; from a hand clap, a song or simply shouting "HALLELUJAH!!!"
