

Jason Goodson

May 19, 1981 - January 5, 2026

Jason Goodson was unapologetically himself. Born in New Haven, Connecticut, in 1981, Jason was raised by his mother and attended New Haven Public Schools during his upbringing. And later in life, Jason attended trade school, where he obtained the certification to become a mechanic. Jason was a man with an undeniable drive to learning, with no restrictions on subject or field. In his time, there is not a day that you would not find him delving into something, whether that be a book in his car, his favorite radio station, NPR, or the numerous YouTube channels he frequented; Jason had a thirst for knowledge. Hours of his life were spent watching Nature documentaries, combing through video after video on assorted historical topics, researching politics, reading the news, and learning how mechanisms work, whether it be arms or cars (both of which he had a great love for). Jason was also an avid fan of the sport of airsoft, in which he spent many of his days reading and researching to expand his ever-growing collection.

Yet, besides his myriad of personal hobbies, Jason was first a father and family man. His life was spent caring for his four children and giving them all that he could. From taking his sons on journeys to the flea market and bringing his kids each and every morning to school, to always being there for haircuts or to patch up a small nick or wound, Jason was there. He was always there. He was selfless. He was caring. He was funny. He was lighthearted. He was humble. And above all, he was loving.

Jason is preceded by his father, Alan Goodson Sr., and his brother, Alan Goodson Jr. He is survived by his lifelong lover and partner, Crystal Deleon, his daughter, Asia (Jayquan) Hunter, and his granddaughter and future grandson: Khila Johnson, and Million Johnson; his oldest son, Jason (Takeira) Goodson and his future granddaughter Tarajaé Goodson, and his younger sons, Omare Goodson, and Asa Goodson. He as well lives in the memory of his mother, Georgia Green, his sisters: Adrienne Green, Pamela Green, Perhonda Goodson, and Shani Goodson; and his brother, Troy Goodson. He is also left in the mind of his mother-in-law, Theresa Deleon, and his numerous cousins, nieces/nephews, and family members.

There will be a viewing for Jason on Friday, January 16th, at Ebenezer Chapel starting at 10 AM. After, there will be a service for him starting at 11 AM, a balloon release at 12:30 PM, and a repass which will occur after the service.

We live on, with Jason in both our minds, and our hearts, as he is a soul that will never be forgotten.

“ 157 days without you. Sometimes it's like a silence rains over this house. Sometimes I get up to go downstairs to bother someone to be met with an empty room. Sometimes I wake up to an alarm thinking it's a call from you. It's easy to take the small things for granted when they are constant, but you never expect them to leave such a big impact when they are gone. There is never a day I don't miss you, and I hope you knew that I strive to make you proud every day; I strive to be strong for you every day. You were strong, I hope to match a least an ounce of the strength you had. I love you, Pops, forever and always.

“ Hello my sweet baby it's been 71 days and you have not been home. I miss you so much, my love but I know that you're in a more humble happier place looking down at the silly girl that I am crying so hard on a daily basis I'm trying to do my best to fill the void of you being gone. I have to tell you our kids are so strong. They miss you so much and they have their moments but they know that you were smiling down at them. I just miss your smell. I miss your smile. I miss the way you were so selfless with me. I miss the gentle quiet storm. You wear so simple and loving and giving I wasn't at my best last year and I'm sorry for that because now this year I have to go on without you and whatever I didn't get to do I promise to make you proud and do it. I love you, but I know that you were borrowed to me and you were not mine and for that I pray every day to ask God to give me strength to keep going on without you I was with you when I was 18 time flew by so fast 25 years, passed us by And for some people it might feel like a lifetime but for us we were just starting our kids were getting older and we were able to do more things. I miss you Papi and this life will never be the same without you, but I promise to put one foot in front of the other and keep going. Sprinkle your love upon me once in a while. Let me feel the warmth of your presence. I love you today less than I will. Love you tomorrow forever yours

“ Heartfelt condolences to Jason's Family. I remember when Jason was born. Our families spent a lot of great times together. He was always a happy child, very smart and quick like his Dad. He loved family so it's no surprise to hear how he's lovingly nurtured his own. He will be greatly missed. Praying you all are comforted by memories of the precious time you've had with Jason. That God covers each one of you with his loving grace and mercy, giving the unity, strength and comfort and whatever is needed to make it through. 🙏🕊️🙏

“ Hello baby, I love you so so so so much. This really hurt me this hurt at our family. We can't believe this baby. I walk around this lonely house every day and I'm missing your presence. It's really hard. Our bed is empty and cold on one side, and your clothes are in the closet Sneakers through the hallway in the house. everywhere we look we see you baby even the van outside is an imagination of you sitting in it. I'm lost. I love you so much and we had so much other things to do in this lifetime. You are my forever love baby and I'm so sick by this I know you see the bickering and the unhappy mess. I'm sorry I will do my best to do better and speak love and loudness into the world like you would have wanted you loved me out loud and everybody knew because you've seen something in me that I didn't even know it was there. I love you so much. You took a part of me more than half of my heart and I'm hoping God is able to fix me because baby I'm missing you so so much that it hurts. I love you forever Jason I will always keep your name alive and all of our children look up to you. You were king Dad in a small little dungeon that we lived in I love you watch over us baby.
